

Building Better Accessibility

The Challenge

In April 2024, the U.S. Department of Justice published a final rule under Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) requiring public entities to bring their digital content into compliance with Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) 2.1 AA. The rule took effect in June 2024, with a compliance deadline of April 2026. For MaineHousing, the implications were significant.

MaineHousing's public-facing website contains hundreds of documents including program guidelines, applications, reports, notices, forms, and marketing materials spanning 13 departments and accumulated over many years. In September 2025, an initial audit conducted using SiteImprove, the agency's web accessibility and quality assurance platform, revealed approximately 1,800 documents with accessibility issues that would put the agency out of compliance with the new ruling. With roughly six months to meet the deadline, a reactive or piecemeal approach would not be sufficient. What was needed was a coordinated, agency-wide effort that combined the right technology, the right people, and a disciplined process built for scale.

The challenge was not simply technical. Many of the documents had been created by program staff across departments with no prior accessibility training. Staff had varying levels of technical comfort, and the sheer volume of work identifying, categorizing, correcting, and verifying nearly 1,800 documents far exceeded what any single team could absorb. MaineHousing needed to transform accessibility compliance into a shared organizational responsibility, without disrupting the day-to-day work of a small state housing agency.

The Approach

MaineHousing's response began with structure. The agency asked each of its 13 departments to designate a staff member to serve as their department's accessibility representative. These approximately 20 individuals formed the core of a new cross-departmental accessibility group; a working team that would own the compliance effort within their respective areas and carry new accessibility practices back to their colleagues.

Each representative was given a license to Adobe Acrobat Pro ($250 per person, per year), the primary tool used to identify and correct accessibility errors within PDF documents. In October 2025, the group convened for an initial presentation that covered the history of accessibility compliance, the specifics of the new DOJ ruling, the WCAG 2.1 AA standards, and MaineHousing's plan and timeline for achieving compliance by April 2026. The goal was not simply to assign tasks, but to build genuine understanding of why the work mattered so that staff invested time and effort with context and purpose, not just obligation.

Even with Adobe Acrobat Pro in hand, staff quickly discovered that identifying an accessibility error and knowing how to fix it were two different things. Acrobat's accessibility checker is effective at flagging problems, but its guidance on remediation was often unclear or technically ambiguous for staff without a background in document accessibility or html. To bridge that gap, MaineHousing used Scribe, a screen-capture tool that allowed users to quickly generate clear, step-by-step visual tutorials directly from their own workflows. At approximately $5,000 per year for an enterprise license with five seats, Scribe allowed the webmaster to build a custom library of remediation instructions tailored specifically to the accessibility errors MaineHousing staff were encountering most frequently. Rather than sending department representatives to hunt through Acrobat's help documentation for answers that might not apply to their specific situation, staff received plain-language, screenshot-guided directions created with Scribe. This significantly reduced the back-and-forth between department representatives and the webmaster, accelerated the pace of corrections, and gave staff the confidence to resolve issues independently.

From October through March, the webmaster facilitated a series of group meetings with department representatives. These sessions were practical and problem-focused: common accessibility errors were demonstrated and resolved together, difficult documents were worked through as a group, and departments used the sessions to develop new internal process pathways, ensuring that future documents created or uploaded to the website would meet accessibility standards from the outset, rather than requiring correction after the fact.

In parallel, the webmaster used SiteImprove to conduct the initial full audit and generate department-specific lists of non-compliant documents. This targeted approach ensured that each department received only the information relevant to their work, making the project manageable rather than overwhelming. Of the roughly 1,800 documents identified, approximately 350 were outdated materials that no longer needed to be publicly available and were removed from the site entirely before the process started in October. This brought the list down to about 1,450 documents when departments were included in the process. Another 600 documents were designated for archiving. Materials created before the April 2026 compliance date, that would not be updated could be moved to an archived section of the site or assigned archive-designated URLs, placing them outside the scope of the compliance requirement. Finally, about 100 documents were from third party sites such as HUD or the IRS and did not need to be updated by MaineHousing staff. This stage alone eliminated over half the initial documents before a single accessibility edit was made.

Progress reporting was built into the process. Department lists were refreshed monthly in November, December, and January, allowing representatives to track their progress and prioritize their remaining work. In February, the cadence accelerated to weekly updates. By March, the webmaster was pulling updated lists twice per week and working directly with departments on outstanding documents to ensure the April 2026 deadline would be met.

The Results

MaineHousing's approach worked not because of the presence of a single expert or a centralized team driving the project, but the technology that put capability directly in the hands of staff across the agency. Adobe Acrobat Pro gave 20 employees in 13 departments the ability to identify and correct accessibility errors in their own documents, on their own time, without routing every file through a single point of contact. Scribe turned the webmaster's expertise into shareable, reusable instructions that staff could follow independently. SiteImprove gave every department a consistent, objective benchmark they could check against before submitting corrected documents. Together, these three tools distributed the work and the ownership across the entire agency.

The technology investment that made this possible totaled approximately $21,000 annually: $5,000 for Adobe Acrobat Pro licenses, $5,000 for Scribe, and $11,000 for SiteImprove. A modest onboarding investment in training staff to use these tools effectively meant that the work could be spread across 20 people rather than concentrated on one. Alternatively, MaineHousing could have contracted document remediation to an outside vendor but would have produced no lasting internal capacity, and left the agency dependent on outside help for every future compliance need. Instead, MaineHousing built a self-sufficient workforce capable of sustaining accessibility compliance long after the April 2026 deadline passes.

The results reflect that investment. The document inventory that began at approximately 1,800 non-compliant items in October had been reduced to just over 200 by early March, a reduction of nearly 90% in roughly five months. The combination of strategic removal, archiving, and active remediation allowed the agency to work directing staff energy where it was most needed rather than attempting to correct every document indiscriminately. When discrepancies arose between Acrobat's accessibility checker and SiteImprove's scan results, the agency resolved the ambiguity cleanly by designating SiteImprove as the authoritative final pass/fail tool, ensuring every corrected document cleared a single consistent standard before going back on the website.

Beyond the document count, the project leaves MaineHousing with something more durable: 20 staff members across 13 departments who understand accessibility standards, know how to apply them, and have built new document workflows that prevent future backlogs from forming. The internal processes that emerged from this effort, new creation and review steps embedded in how departments handle documents going forward, are an added bonus to the technology adoption used to solve this problem. The process changes followed naturally because staff had the skills, confidence, and technology to make them.

Minimum

Includes fundamental requirements like ensuring all functionality is available via keyboard, using clear labels, and providing alternatives to using color alone to convey information. The bare minimum.

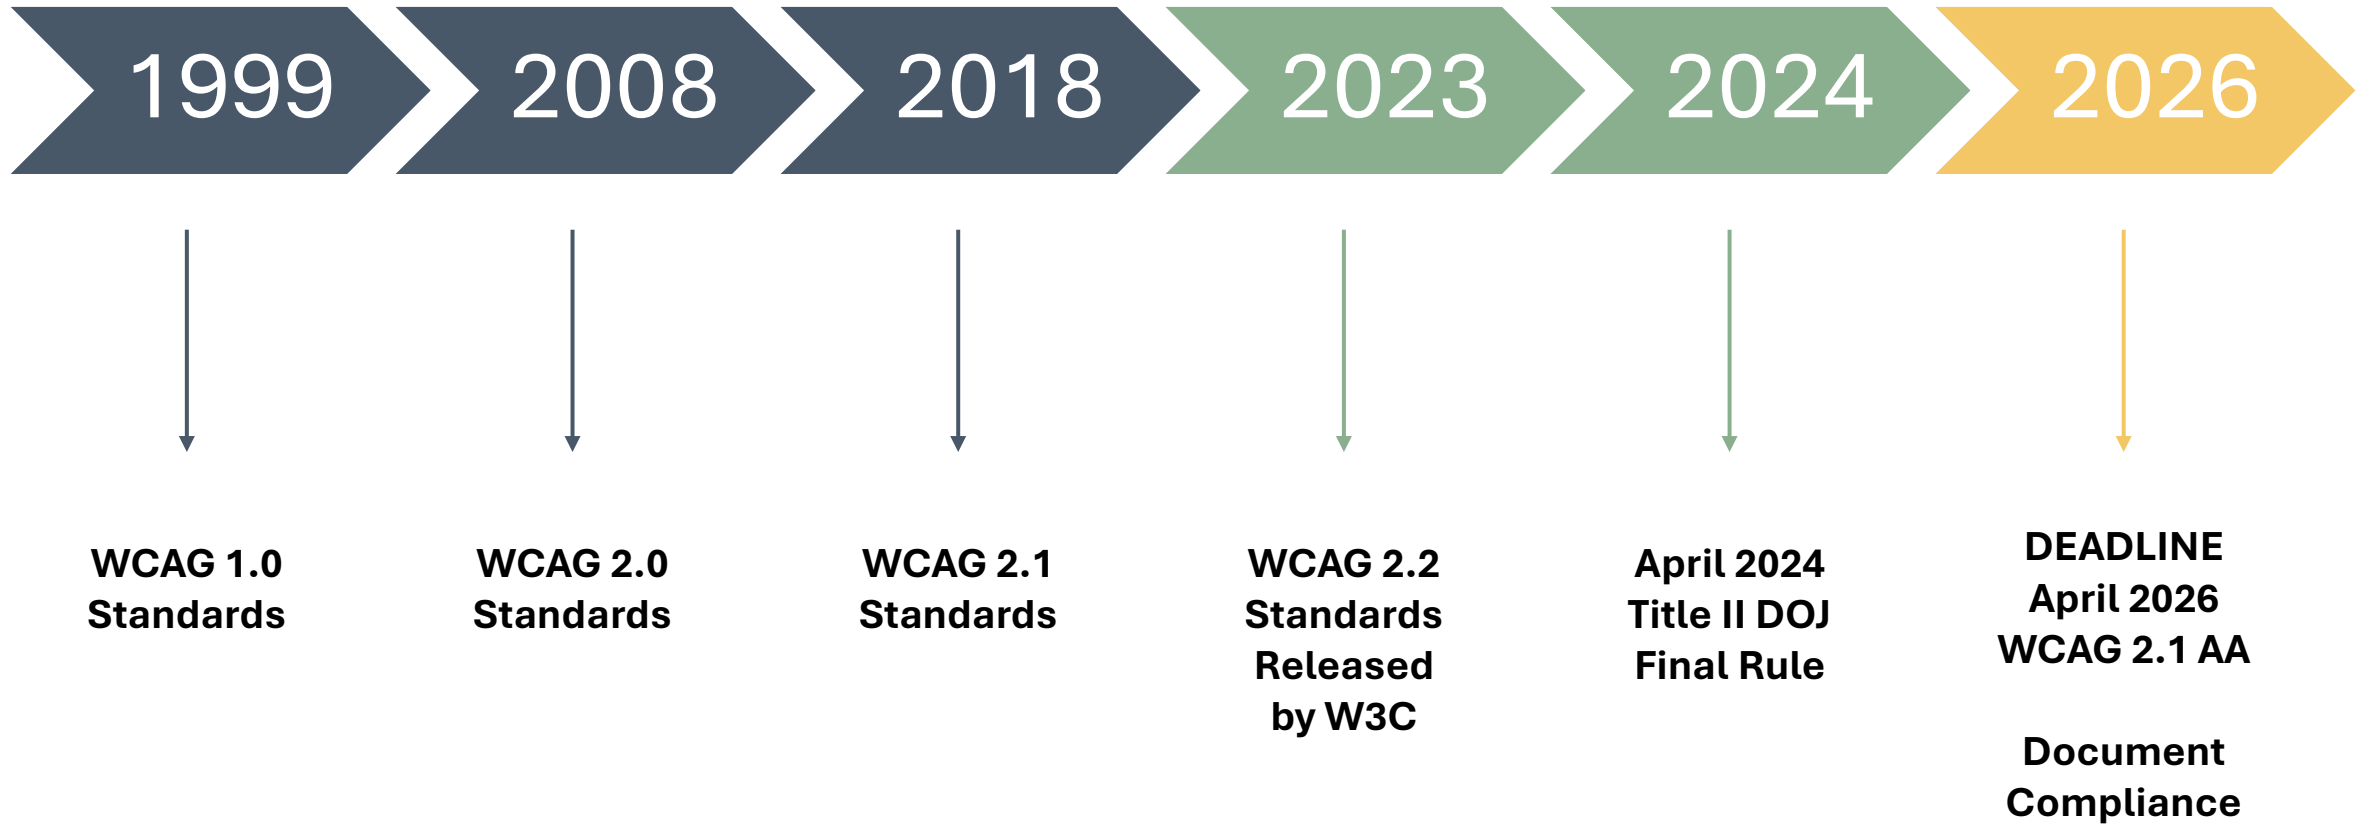

Guidelines

Principles	Guidelines	Level A	Level AA	Level AAA
PERCEIVABLE	Text Alternative	Provide text alternative for all non-text content
	Time-based Media	Provide alternative to video/audio only content Provide captions for video and audio Video with audio has a second alternative	Live video has captions Users have access to audio descriptions for video content	Provide sign language translations for videos Provide extended audio description for videos Provide text alternative to videos Provide alternatives for live audio
	Adaptable	Logical structure Present content in a meaningful order Use more than one sense for instructions
	Distinguishable	Don't use presentation that relies solely on color Don't play audio and animations automatically	Content ratio between text and background is at least 4.5:1 Text can be resized to 200% without loss of content or function Don't use image of text	Contrast ratio between text and background is at least 7:1 Audio is clear for listeners to hear Offers users a range of presentation options Don't use images of text
OPERABLE	Keyboard Accessible	Accessible by keyboard only Don't trap keyboard users		Accessible by keyboard only
	Enough Time	Provide user controls for content with time limits Provide user controls for moving content		No time limits Let users control interruptions, except emergencies Preserve user data when re-authenticating
	Seizures	No content flashes more than 3 times per second		Avoid flashing objects or limit to three flashes per second
	Navigable	Provide ability to skip duplicate content Provide descriptive page titles Support logical navigation and viewing order Provide descriptive link text	Offer multiple ways to find pages Use descriptive headings and labels Ensure keyboard focus is visible and clear	Let users know where they are Every link's purpose is clear from its text Break content with headings
UNDERSTANDABLE	Readable	Specify language of each page	Tell user when the language within a page changes	Explain any unusual words Explain any abbreviations and jargon Users with nine years of school can read your content Explain any words that are hard to pronounce
	Predictable	Elements don't change when they receive focus Elements don't change when receive input	Keep menus consistent Use icons and buttons consistently	Don't change elements on your website until the user asks
	Input Assistance	Clearly identify input errors Label elements and give instructions	Suggest corrections when the user makes an error Reduce the risk of input errors for sensitive data	Provide detailed help and instructions Reduce the risk of all input errors
ROBUST	Compatible	No major code errors Build all elements for accessibility

2026 Website Document Accessibility

Presentation Script

I'm going to start with some background on accessibility. Then we'll move onto what we've been mandated to fix with website documents, how we'll do that and the process going forward.

This is going to be a bit of alphabet soup so please stop me if you get confused.

SLIDE - Background

Website accessibility standards are handled by is an international public-interest non-profit organization called The World Wide Web Consortium (W3C).

W3C and it's member organizations that work together on the Web Accessibility Initiative to build standards and provide resources to help the public create accessible digital content.

WCAG are the individual guidelines provided by W3C and WAI that you need to follow in order to create accessible digital content.

SLIDE - Levels

Accessibility is split between levels and versions.

WAI will give you one of three levels.

A – the bottom, and the bare minimum.

This level makes sure your digital content can be read by a screen reader, can be navigated with a keyboard and does not use color alone to convey info.

AA – The middle is the Intermediate level and the goal for most.

Better contrast ratios, text alternatives for images, links, buttons (text alternative is when you hover a cursor over something and a text bubble appears), logical text structures, defined languages, and consistent navigation.

AAA – The top, is the most comprehensive level and considered fully accessible
Strict color contrast ratios, no flashing, no text on images, low image use, no audio without sign language, a much lower text to screen width use ratio. Not a realistic goal for most sites, high unattainable for many. Many use an tool that overlays your site and forcibly changes AAA items. Accessibility Man on our site.

SLIDE – Guidelines

WCAG give you a version number.

This starts with 4 Principles:

- Perceivable
- Operable
- Understandable
- Robust

Each Principle is then broken down into guidelines with action items on each level. Each guidelines has at the very least an A level action item. It may also have an AA or AAA level action item. Every single action item will have a number like 1.2.4. You can look that item up on W3C's website in the WCAG quick reference to see what you need to adhere to and what a failure to comply looks like.

We use a tool called SiteImprove to make sure we're complying with the guidelines we need to be. It also gives us exact instructions on how to solve failures to comply.

SLIDE – Conformance

So you're always working to achieve a WAI level and WCAG version. W3C makes these badges available on their site. You can say to what level and guide you have complied.

The current goal underway is WAI AA, WCAG 2.1.

SLIDE – Timeline

So here is a quick guideline of the WCAG standards released.

The very first iteration was in 1999

WCAG 2.0 was released in 2008. In 2006 Target was sued for having an inaccessible website by the National Federation of the Blind. It brought a ton of attention to ADA accessibility. The suit was settled in 2008

WCAG 2.1 Standards released in 2018.

WCAG 2.2 released in 2023

Up until this point WCAG 2.1 Level A was considered the goal. In April of 2024 the final rule was published updating the Department of Justice's regulations for Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act. This final rule specified that all governmental agencies must be in compliance of WCAG 2.1 Level AA by April 24, 2026.

Previous rulings referred to websites. This ruling refers to digital content which opened the door for all content on the web. .

WCAG <https://www.w3.org/WAI/WCAG22/quickref/>

SLIDE – Digital Content

So what does Digital Content include?

Websites, Mobile Apps, Documents, Course Materials & Videos.

The rule does make specific exceptions for some items including:

Archived Web Content, Pre-existing old electronic documents, password protected items, and third-party posts and documents.

SLIDE – Archive & More

What are archived Web Content and pre-existing old electronic documents? Ask yourself the following:

- Is this being kept for reference only?
- Will it ever change?
- Is it already located in a special area such as “archive or old”

Answering yes to any of these can qualify something as archive or pre-existing content.

For archived content think old RFPs, old Program Guides, documents for programs that have closed. If something is actively being used it cannot be counted as a pre-existing document.

For pre-existing documents think legislative bills, dated reports.

For Third Party posts & documents think IRS or HUD forms.

It is also important to note that having an option for a reasonable accommodation does not apply to this. We must comply without a reasonable accommodation.

We can however make two versions of something. You can have a non-accessible version and an accessible version but they must BOTH appear together.

* This is why I started with the list for everyone.

Also ask your self does it need to be a document? Is it commonly printed? Could this be shown as a webpage? This doesn't mean everything should be transformed into a webpage, but it is far easier to make something accessible as a webpage.

SLIDE – Checking For Accessibility

If it needs to stay as a documents then we'll be using a few different platforms to check accessibility.

1 – office products like word, excel & powerpoint – can check accessibility

2 – Acrobat – can check, change, and suggest or flag edits that need to be made.

3 – SiteImprove – will identify where the problems on the site are and show you how to wdit. This is where the list and reports came from. If you're having trouble with acrobat flagging issues that you just cannot fix, we can upload to the site and recheck with SiteImprove to see if they're still flagged.

4 – AccessibilityNow – this is a final option with money involved.

SLIDE – Hard Fixes

Tagging, Reading Order, OCR Recognition, Language Assignment and more are all things that can be automatically corrected by the accessibility checkers in Word and Acrobat.

 I'm using word here because we have far more word docs, but the steps are the same in each office product.

WORD – Open document > go to review > check Accessibility. It may also show in the bottom bar of the word window.

ACROBAT – All Tools > Prepare for accessibility > Check for accessibility. Make sure to uncheck Create Accessibility report but that everything else is checked off.

It will then open a window on the right hand side with the issues. Blue question marks are okay. Red Xs are items that need to be fixed. Right clicking on an item will tell you if it can be automatically fixed or needs more in depth help.

This is where it starts to get tricky. If it can't be fixed automatically in Acrobat there are likely problems that are likely problems that started in word.

SLIDE – Easiest Fixes

If you keep in mind the items below it will help you start your document off on the right foot and keep the changes needed later to a minimum.

- Document Title – You can easily add this through the properties menu in Word and Acrobat. It's File > Info in Word. File > Document properties in Acrobat. I would say about 90% of the files I upload to the website have either no title or the wrong title.

- Clear Hierarchy – Your document should start with the largest font you will use throughout the entire document and then get smaller as you go. Section headers should be consistent size and formatting.

- alt text for images and links – Make sure images and links have alt info so that when a mouse hovers over then people using screen readers know exactly what they're interacting with.

- vertical tables are a problem point – Tables that run vertically, this two columns like a form, are a pain point. Use them sparingly because they will always bring back errors that cannot be fixed.

SLIDE – Process

So your process going forward should look like this:

- 1 – Check your document in word before saving it to PDF.
2. – Check your document in Acrobat. Just because is passed in word does not mean it will in a PDF version.
- 3 – submit your document for upload and I will then recheck in Acrobat. If it has errors the doc will not be bounced back to you till it is clear of errors.
- 4 - Upload to the site.
- 5 – SiteImprove is constantly monitoring our site for accessibility errors. If you're having a particularly hard time clearing an acrobat error we can run it manually through SiteImprove. If something changes in accessibility rules and this document has a problem later it will be flagged.

SLIDE – Next Steps

December 12 – Let me know which documents can be removed or archived from the site.

January – A second meeting to trouble shoot problems we're having with any accessibility changes

February 1st – First deadline for uploading new materials and final deadline for problems.

April 1st – Final Accessibility Deadline for existing document

SiteImprove PDF Audit

The PDF Audit screen will show you all of the PDFs on your site that are out of compliance.

Expanding a record will show details on the problems with the file and provide context on how to fix those problems.

This screenshot shows the details for the 'MaineHousing - Rent Restricted Programs' PDF. The 'Other issues' section is expanded, displaying a table of issues. The table has columns for Issue, Description, and Number of issues. Two issues are listed: 'The table has no table headings' (8 issues) and 'The document contains no headings' (Entire document). Each issue includes a 'Why is this an issue?' section and a 'How to fix it:' section. A 'CO' icon is visible in the bottom right corner.

Issue	Description	Number of issues
The table has no table headings	Why is this an issue? There is a table present without a definition of what headings for rows or columns are. How to fix it: Highlighting these headings using, for example bold text, does not in itself create a table heading in the underlying structure. In order for user agents to render content properly for a user the underlying tagging of table headings is important.	8
The document contains no headings	Why is this an issue? The sections in the document should be divided into logical sections using headings (Heading 1, Heading 2, etc.). How to fix it: Tag headings in the original document (such as MS Word or Adobe InDesign) and save it as pdf with the tagging. Text in a large font or in bold is not necessarily in itself a heading in the underlying structure. If this is not possible then use a remediation tool to create headings in the pdf.	Entire document

Using the PDF Validate screen, you can test files before they are uploaded to your site. By uploading a PDF to the validate tool, it will check for errors and return with a Passed, Failed, or Error Status. Error means it could not read the file.

Appendix D – Sample How To Documents

Checking Document Accessibility in Acrobat Adobe Pro

To check the accessibility of a PDF, you will need Adobe Acrobat Pro. This is not the standard Acrobat product installed on computers at MaineHousing. Make sure you have talked to IT first.

Open the document and click All Tools

The All Tools menu is based on your own configuration so the order of items in the menu may look different on your screen. Click on "Prepare For Accessibility"

This will open a new screen. Make sure everything is selected except for the top item - create a report. Then click Start Checking.

When Acrobat is done checking accessibility a right hand menu will open with the findings. This menu will be divided into sections. If there were accessibility issues, they will appear in a section. Each section will show a number of issues, if any, and a bolded section title. If the section is not bolded or does not have a number there were no issues.

To view the issues, click on a section and expand it. There will be two types of issues - must be fixed issues and FYI issues. Anything with a red X icon next to it must be fixed. An item with a blue question mark icon is for your information only and can be ignored.

Many issues can be easily fixed by right clicking on the item and clicking on "Fix". For the example below, clicking on fix will open a new window where you can edit the title of the document.

The image below show how selecting fix on an image issue missing it's alt text opens a window that allows you to select the item as a decorative image or enter the alt text for that image.

Once you've corrected everything you need to correct make sure to save the document. Click Menu and then save.

The screenshot displays the Adobe Acrobat Pro interface with the '2025 Housing First RFQ' document open. The 'Prepare for accessibility' panel on the left lists several tools: 'Automatically tag PDF', 'Automatically tag form fields', 'Change reading options', 'Check for accessibility', 'Open accessibility report', 'Identify form fields', 'Add alternate text', 'Use setup assistant', and 'Fix reading order'. The main document content is a 'Request for Qualifications' for a 'Develop and Operate Site-Based Home for Good Project'. A highlighted 'Schedule' box contains the following information:

- Issue Date: November 3, 2025
- Interested Parties Conference: November 20, 2025
- Deadline for Written Questions: December 11, 2025
- Response Submission Deadline: January 22, 2026 at 5:00PM

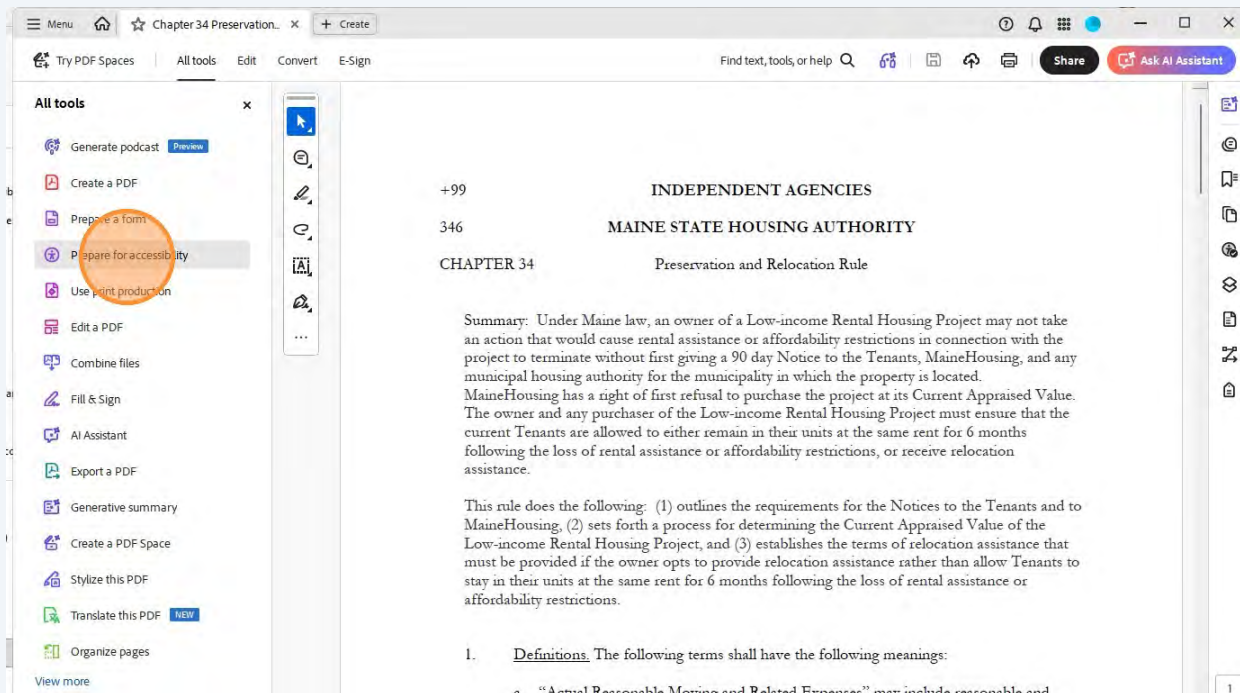

Below the schedule, there is a section titled 'Information Notice' which states: 'MaineHousing does not discriminate on the basis of protected... and state nondiscrimination laws, in the admission or access to, or treatment in, i... employment. MaineHousing will provide appropriate communication auxiliary aids a... MaineHousing will also provide this document in alternative formats upon... has designated the following person responsible for coordinating compliance with appli... nation requirements and addressing grievances: Kelley Stonebraker, Maine State Ho.'

The 'Accessibility Checker' panel on the right shows the following results:

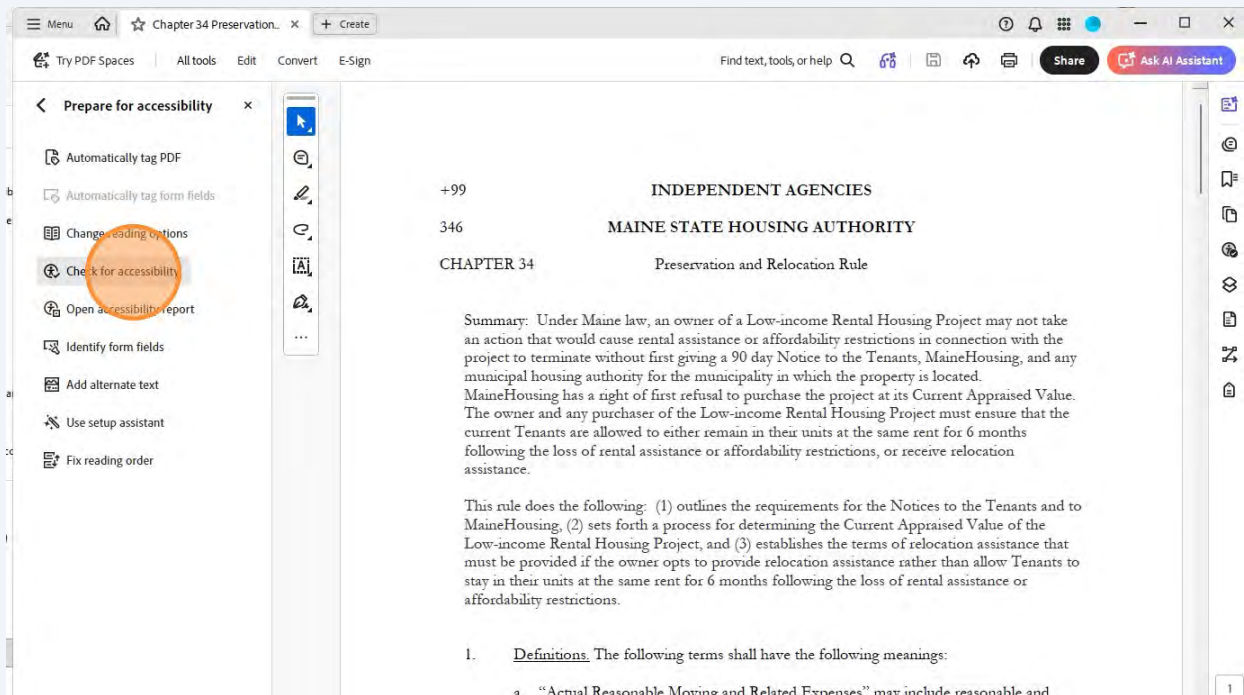

- Document (2 issues)
- Page Content (1 issue)
 - Tagged content - Passed
 - Tagged annotations - Passed
 - Tab order - Passed
 - Character encoding - Passed
 - Tagged multimedia - Passed
 - Screen flicker - Passed
 - Scripts - Passed

 - Headings

Adobe Acrobat - Document Contains No Headings

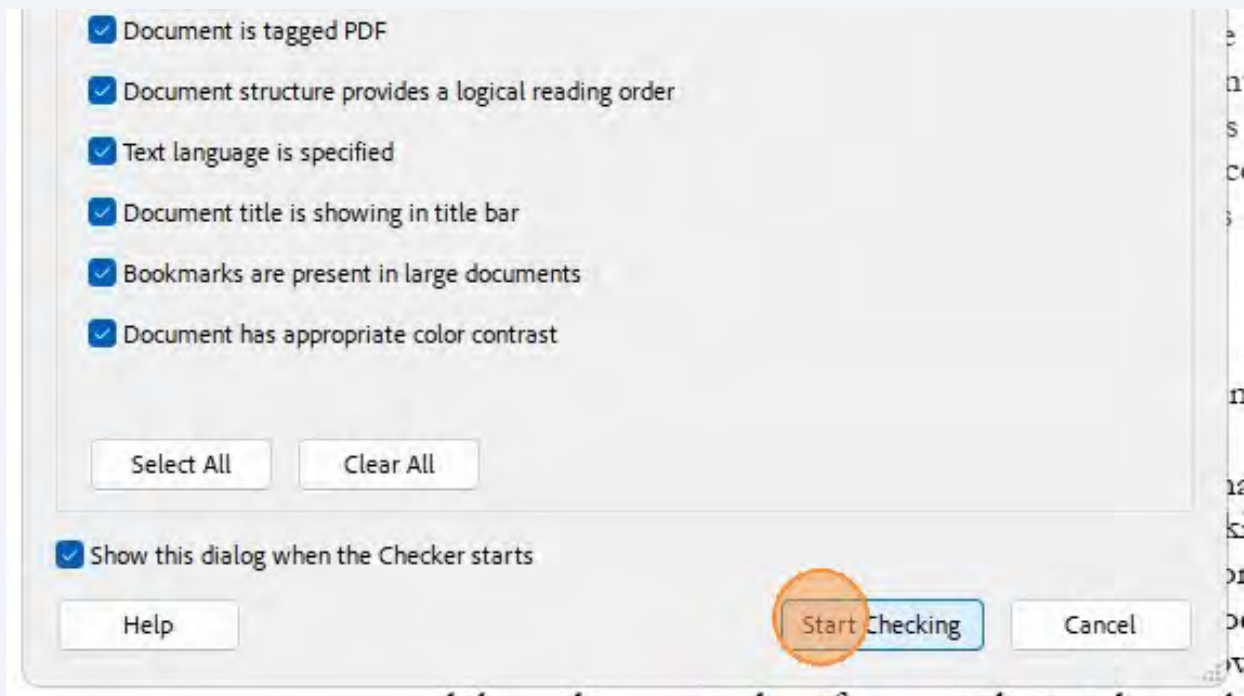

1 Open document and click "Prepare For Accessibility"

2 Click "Check For Accessibility"

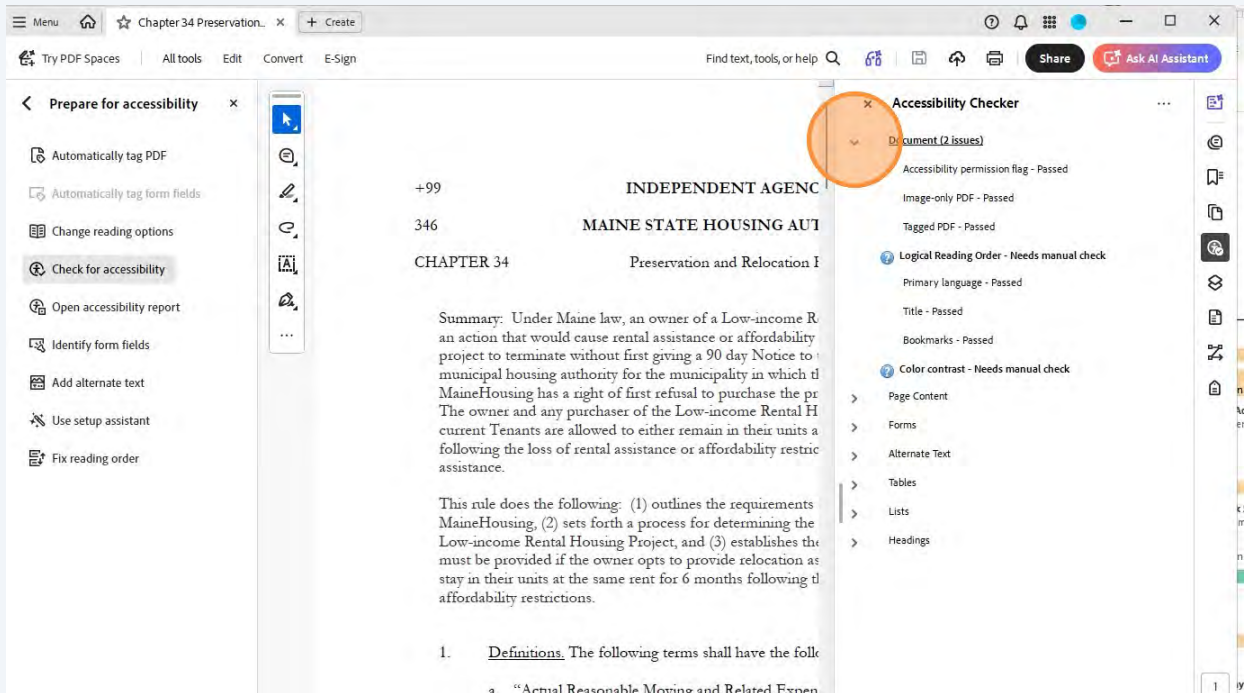

3 Click "Start Checking"

When the accessibility checker returns results it appears that the document is fine, however when uploaded to the site, it is still returning an accessibility error for "This document contains no headings"

Click on the tags icon to view all tags in the document.

When you open the tags window you will see a number of  tags (paragraph) but no header tags like <h1>, <h2>, <h3>, <h4>, etc. Header tags, specifically H1 signify the beginning of a document.

To fix this error, go back to the Accessibility menu and click "Fix Reading Order"

Once you have a screen that looks something like this, click the first item on the page.

Then click "Heading 1" to tag the item you click in the previous step as a Heading 1

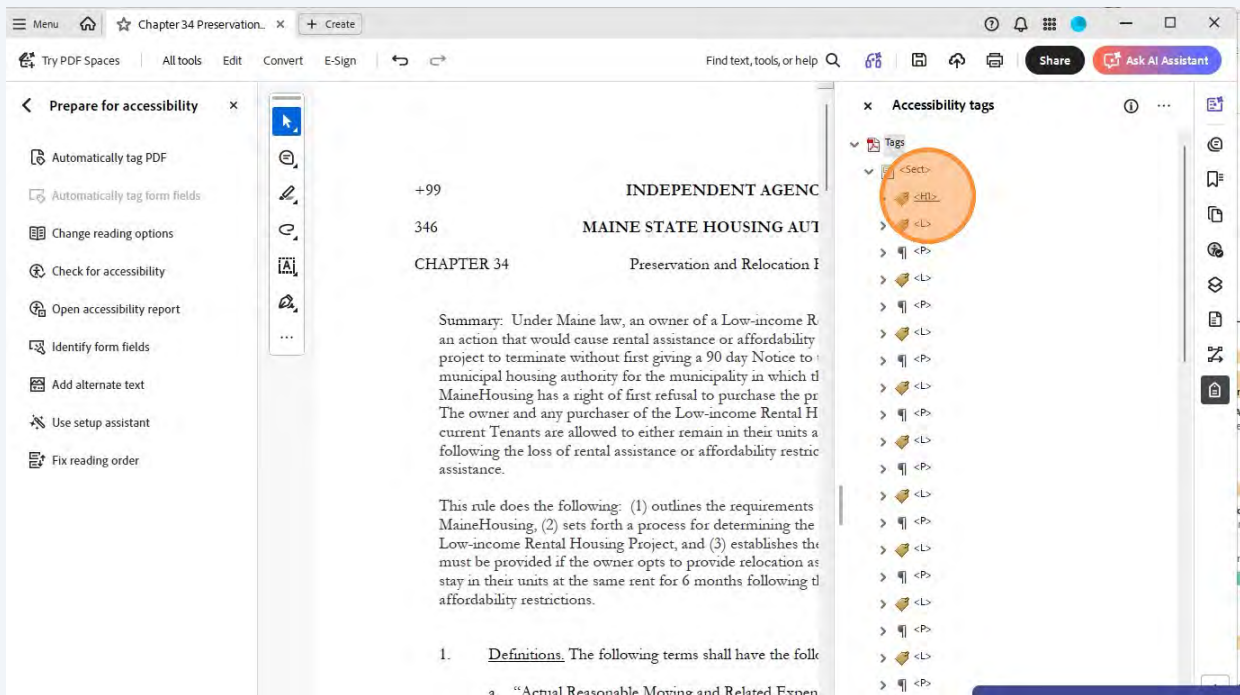

10 Click "Close"

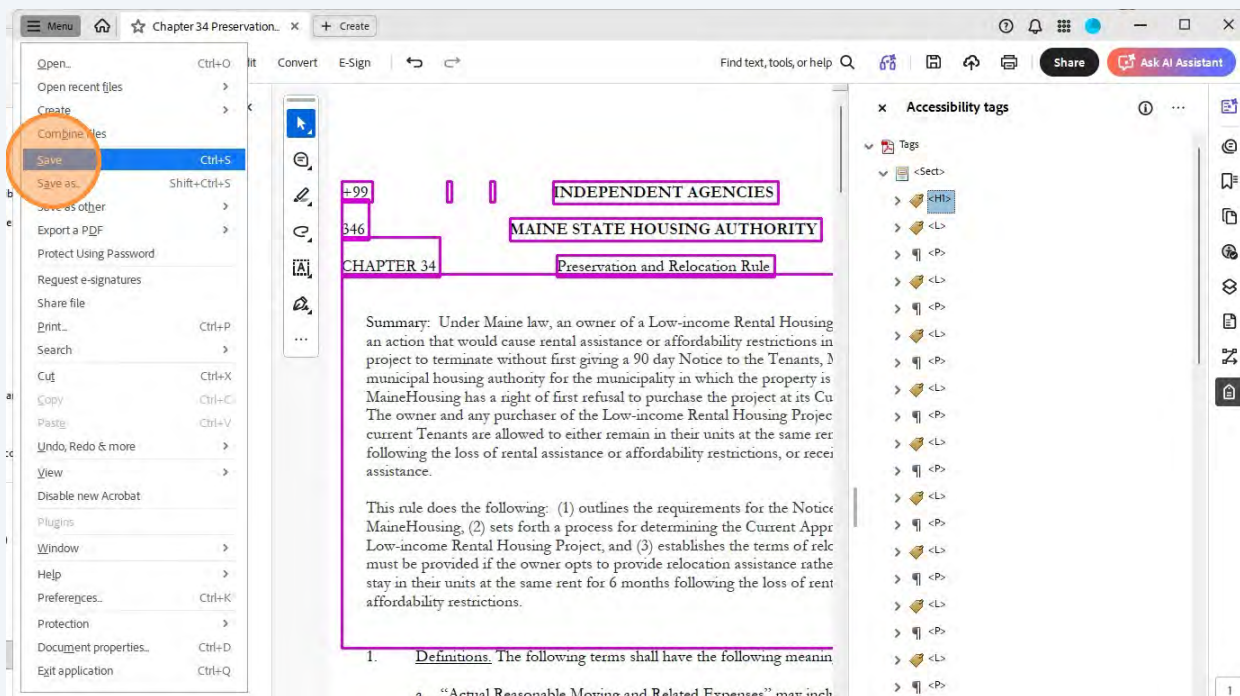

11 Now go back and look at your tag. Click the tags icon

12 You can see that now you have a heading tag as the first tag.

13 Before closing, make sure to save your document with the updated tags.

How To Fix Failed Tagging Annotations (email links)

PDF Accessibility

Open the document you need to check for accessibility and then click "Prepare For Accessibility"

Find: Artifacts

Type: Unmarked Annotations

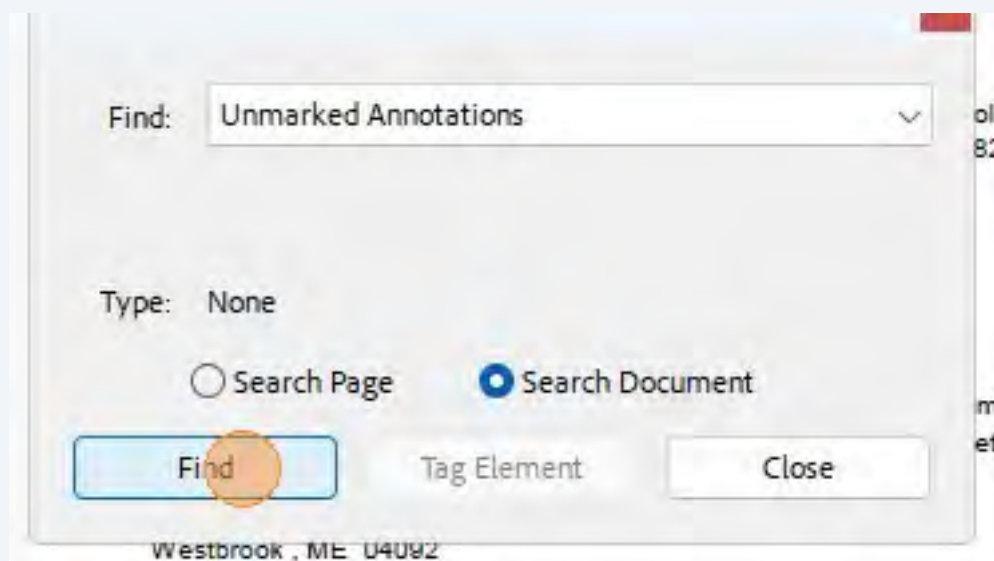

Find Tag Element Close

Westbrook, ME 04092

12 For Type select "Search Document"

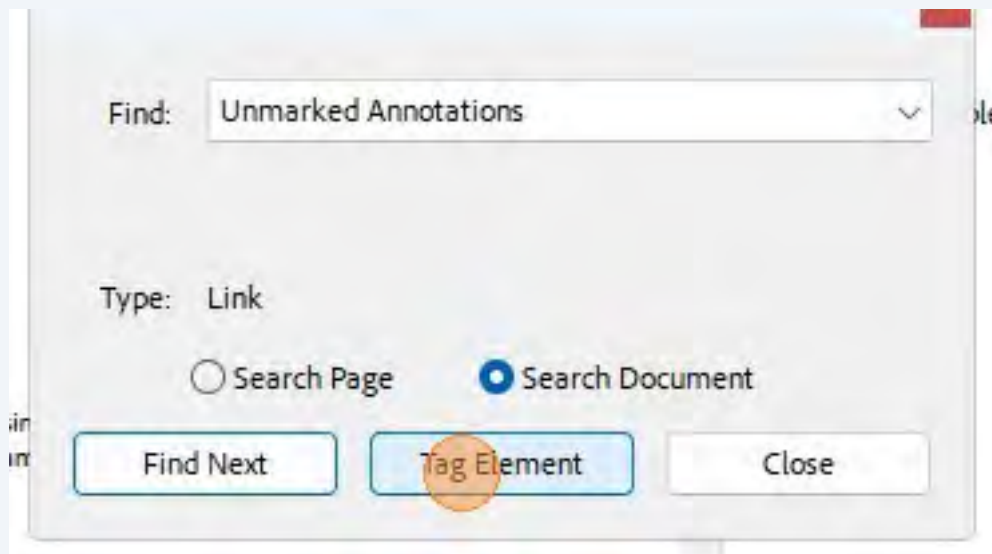

13 Click "Find"

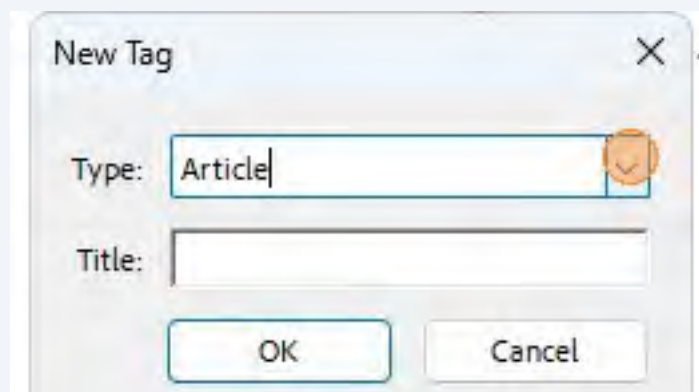

14

When it finds an unmarked annotation, it will highlight in the document and open this window again. Click "Tag Element"

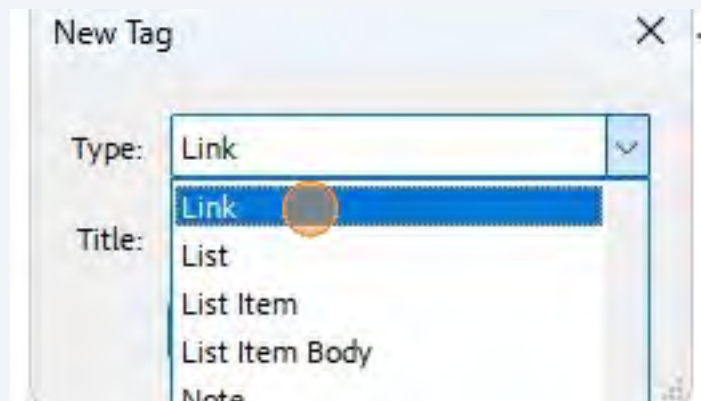

15

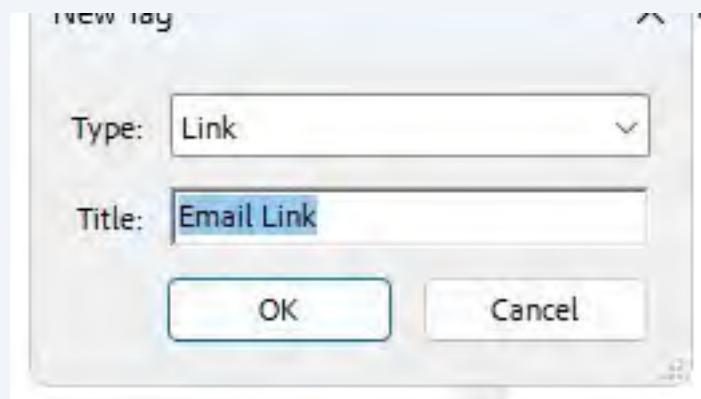

Click the "Type:" dropdown to see a full list of the tag types.

- 16 Select Link from the Type dropdown. This example is for email links ONLY.

- 17 In the Title field enter something that describes this link. I am entering "Email Link" for each item.

- 18 Click "OK"

19

It will then proceed to search the document for all empty tag annotations. You will need to repeat steps 14-18 to fix each annotation it finds. When it has found everything a window will appear saying none found. Click "OK"

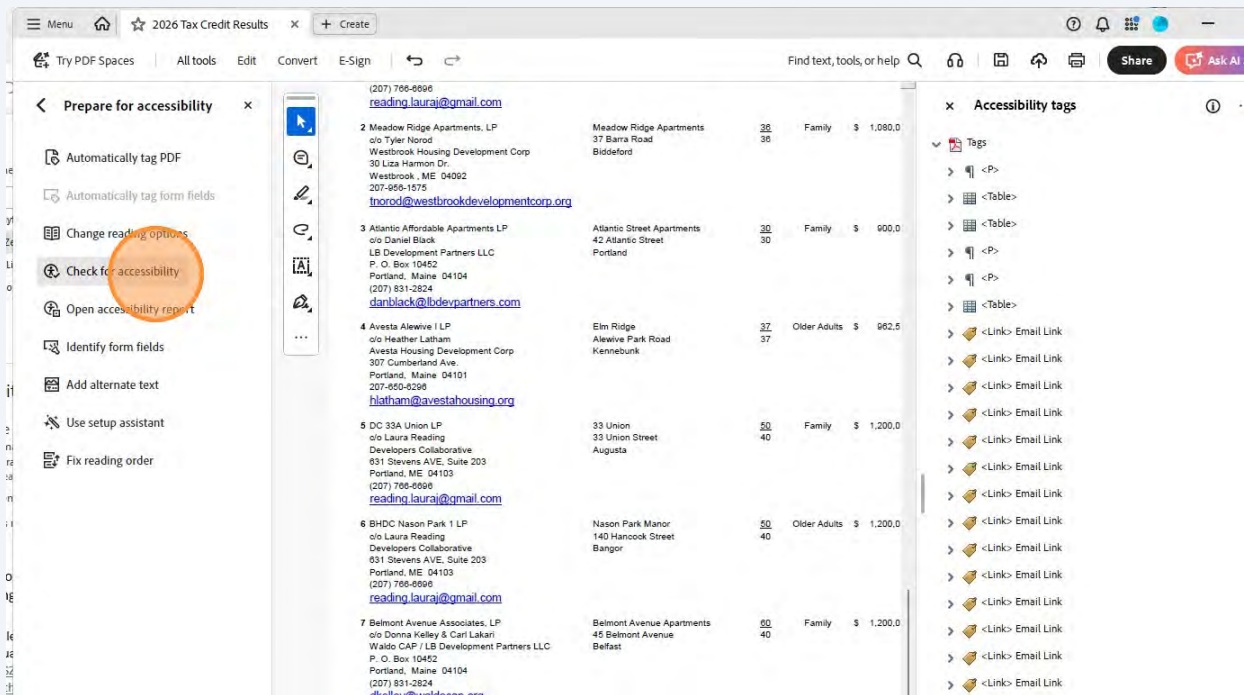

20

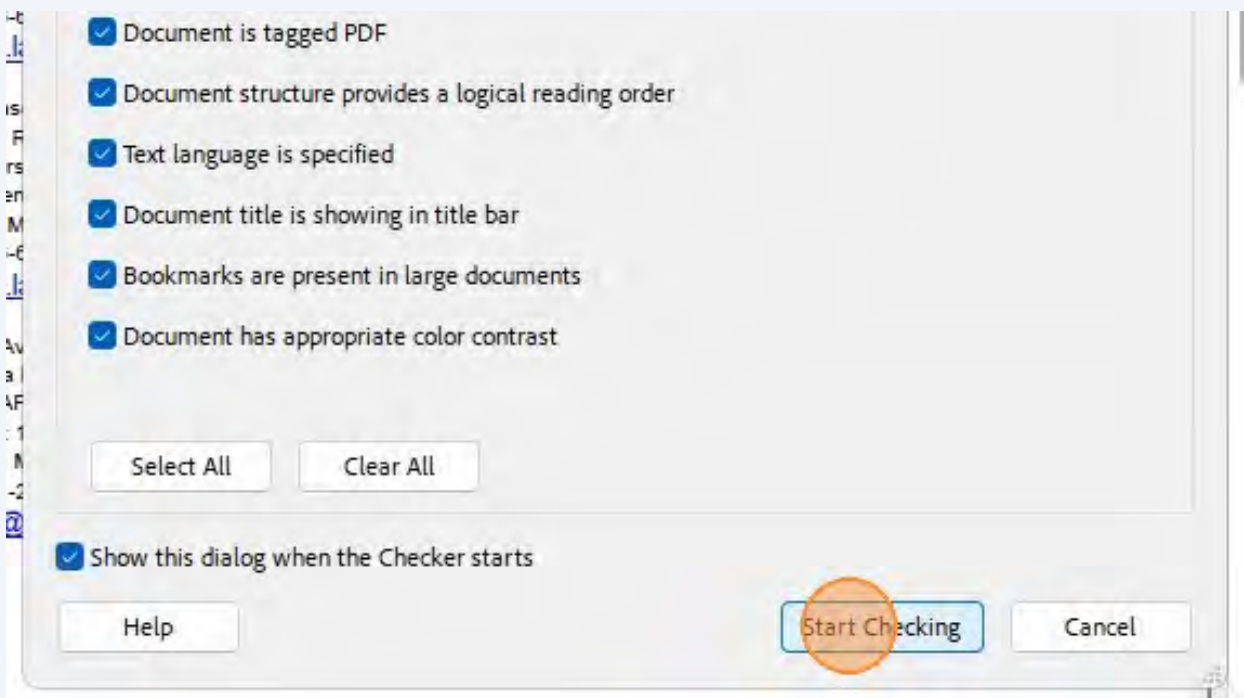

Click "Close"

21 Check the accessibility of the document again. Click "Check for Accessibility"

22 Click "Start Checking"

23 You can see that tagged annotations section has now passed accessibility.
